Introduction

Antonella is a full-time versatile multi-lingual actress with a penchant for accents based in Malta. She recently played Bree Hammond in Hallmark's To Catch A Spy alongside Nathalie Kelley, and is currently rehearsing for a play with Malta's National Theatre. After training locally, in 2005 she read for a Masters in Performance at the Goldsmiths College, London, and then worked as an actress in the UK in the following years. Upon moving to Brussels, she trained in the Meisner Technique with Larry Silverberg and Pico Berkowitch, and then trained in the Chubbuck Technique with John Flanders in Brussels and at Ivana Chubbuck's own studio in Los Angeles. A well-known face in Maltese theatre and TV, Antonella plays regular roles in two series on the Maltese National TV channel, presents a TV programme on the same station and interprets roles in the theatre regularly. She produced her own short film 'Marbut' funded by the Malta Film Fund. Antonella records voiceovers regularly and is Festival Director for National Theatre's Youth Theatre Festival.
